

Prof. Sanda Erdelez, University of Missouri (MU), USA.

This is my first time in Pakistan and it is exciting to see that how many young future librarians are present here. Master students, PHD students and their professors. I have heard quite a bit and one thing that really stopped me here is friendliness and hospitality. The organizers, they did an amazing job, bringing everybody here, making sure that everybody feels safe and there is a lot of opportunity for networking so I can just imagine how much of work and preparation went through it and so far everything is exceeding my expectations.

Dr. Abdus Sattar Chaudhry, College of Social Science, Kuwait University

I generally do not go on Facebook but was prompted to see the conference video alerted by countless messages received in my inbox. I am glad I watched the amazing video. It reminded me to write this message.

I am very excited to send my heartfelt congratulations on the wonderful success of ICIML 2015. I have attended hundreds of conferences all over the world. Comparing with these, I feel very proud to say that ICIML stood out on all counts: planning, website, papers/presentations, hospitality, logistics, and cultural event. What impressed me the most that everyone among the organizers appeared to be doing his/her part from the heart - passion, enthusiasm, excitement and sense of belonging, all of us felt it was 'our conference'. Impressive attendance in the sessions testified the quality. I am very much encouraged from the contribution of the graduates of the Department - Dr. Nosheen, Dr. Shafique, Hina, Ammara, Alia and others (sorry for not remembering some names). Everyone displayed dedication and professionalism.

I recall a story of a high profile conference held in Malaysia in 1986 - 2nd Congress of Muslim Librarians and Information Specialists. Dr. Oli Muhammad, the University Librarian and the Conference Chair, related that two girls were lent to the University Library from the Registrar Office to assist in the Conference work. Their morale was boosted so much by the thrilling work in the conference that they refused to go back to their parent department after the conference was over. Throughout the conference, I felt this morale in presenters and participants (students, professionals, and faculty) at ICIML. You need to keep it up.